LAS VEGAS — “Stem Cells The 21st Century Fountain of Youth” is available for purchase on Sept. 28, 2018 at all independent and retail bookstores.

The book is authored by a Filipino-American doctor, Paul Lapeña Casingal, DC.

Stem cells are undifferentiated cells that repair, restore, regenerate and rejuvenate damaged cells and tissues in the body.

The book looks at the history, types and sources, contemporary research, the pros and cons, the legendary scientists, and practical applications of stem cells.

Stem cells may be the answer to osteoarthritis, neuropathy, COPD, auto-immune, dementia, opioid addiction, etc.

Stem cells are injected or infused into a joint or area of the body that is deemed damaged.

One great aspect of stem cells is that the procedure has very little side effects.

Injected or infused stem cells can grow to millions up to billions of other cells for months.

“Father Time is undefeated,” but Mother Nature now has something to say about it and its stem cells.
