During the launch, Dr. Paz Pecson Corrales, Director III, Assistant Regional Director, Department of Health; Angelica Cayas, Director III, Board of Investments; Raymond Ang, Member of the Board of Trustees, Healthcare Information Management Association of the Philippines; and Ryan Ramos, Head of American Division, Board of Investments showed their support and acknowledged the need for the mobile app.

“This mobile app, a brainchild of three passionate Filipino-American nurses in New York City, takes the employment and staffing in the healthcare industry to another level. The BackApp platform, an innovative staffing technology, is a fitting solution to address the increasing demand for healthcare assistance, especially in the Philippines,” said Cayas.

With at least 23,800 healthcare workers deployed across the Philippines, of which 17,538 are nurses, the developers behind BackApp, a group of seasoned healthcare practitioners and IT experts, are seeing an unprecedented increase in demand for both nurses and caregivers in various settings.

“The Homecare BackApp also aims to keep the Filipino family together by eliminating the need to send your sick family member to the hospital or nursing home. This ultimately reduces hospitalization costs, thus lessening the financial burden on the family,” said Nunez.
