The awards are open to the public and there is no charge for entry.

“Every single day throughout the U.S. members of our AAPI community are serving seniors. Help us give national recognition to these community members who give of themselves to improve the lives of our elders. Nominate a non-senior staff member or volunteer for their commitment to helping older adults,” said Daphne Kwok, AARP Vice President of Multicultural Leadership, Asian American and Pacific Islander Audience Strategy.

“This award is AARP’s acknowledgement to those individuals for their generosity and service that help makes the lives of older adults better.”

Ten finalists will be chosen from the submitted nominees by a committee comprised of AARP staff and featured on a Facebook photo album for open voting in early June.

Users can “like” or “share” the finalist to cast their vote.
